How to fill out a Virginia title

the Virginia Certificate of Title for a Vehicle · 9 of 12 boxes are the seller's · rules as of 2026-08-23

This sheet is not the title. It is the checklist to keep beside one. Any alteration or erasure voids this title - printed across the head of the certificate, and repeated as VOID IF ALTERED down both margins. There is no tidying up a Virginia assignment afterwards. DMV's own order is the order the block is printed in: print and sign your name as seller, provide the name and address of the buyer on the top line of Section A, fill out the odometer reading using the odometer reading from the vehicle, enter the date of sale, and fill out the sale price section.

Who has to sign

Every owner named on the face	DMV's instruction is all owners listed on the title must sign. Two names printed on the front means two signatures in Section A, whoever is doing the talking.
The seller, printed as well as signed	The block prints two lines side by side, Signature of Seller(s) and Printed Name of Seller(s), and wants both.
The buyer, in the same block	Sign and print your full name as the buyer in Section A of the title - the line underneath the seller's, above the sentence acknowledging the odometer certification.
Nobody in front of a notary	No part of Section A is sworn. Virginia's ordinary transfer has no witness, no stamp and no commission number anywhere on it.
A second buyer, if there is one	The block prints a second signature and printed-name pair for a co-buyer. Two people taking the car means both sign, and the title issues in both names.
A dealer, in a different block entirely	The two dealer reassignment blocks are on the reverse, lettered separately, and carry a dealer number and a licensing jurisdiction. A private seller never touches them.

Every box, in the order you meet it

#	WHO	BOX	WHAT GOES IN IT
1	YOU	Section A, top line - the buyer's name	You write the buyer's printed name onto the first line of the block. It is your handwriting, not theirs. Watch out: The sentence above the line spells out what it is for: the vehicle described in this title has been transferred to the following, printed name and address of buyer. Leaving it blank makes an open title and puts your signature on whatever happens next.
2	YOU	Section A - the buyer's street	Street address on the second line, taken off the buyer's licence rather than off a text message. Watch out: This is the address DMV will use if anything about the sale has to be traced back. A misspelled street is the kind of error that comes back as a phone call rather than a rejection.
3	YOU	Section A - city, state and ZIP	The rest of the buyer's address, on the same printed rule to the right. Watch out: Out-of-state buyers are fine here. Virginia's assignment does not care where the car is going; the buyer's own state decides what happens next with the certificate.
4	YOU	Section A - the odometer reading	Whole miles into the shaded box, no tenths. The printed label says so twice. Watch out: DMV's own instruction is to use the odometer reading from the vehicle and not to guess or estimate - and its record already holds the last reading, printed on the face of this certificate. A figure lower than the one on file is what puts a title on hold.
5	YOU	Section A - the date of sale	The day the car actually changed hands, on the rule to the right of the mileage box. Watch out: This is the date the buyer's thirty days under 46.2-630 start running from. Backdating it to be helpful shortens their clock rather than yours.
6	YOU	Section A - the sale price	The figure the buyer actually paid, in dollars, on the last rule of that row. Watch out: Write it. DMV treats the sales price entered by the seller on the title certificate as a bill of sale, and a blank there is what forces a price certification or a valuation look-up onto the buyer.
7	YOU	Section A - your signature	Sign on the Signature of Seller(s) rule. If the certificate names two owners, both signatures go in - the block prints a second line for exactly that. Watch out: Sign it in the same name the face of the certificate carries. A married name on the signature and a maiden name printed above it stops the transaction at the counter.
8	YOU	Section A - your printed name	Print it beside the signature, on the Printed Name of Seller(s) rule. Watch out: Both are asked for. A signature nobody can read, with the printed line left empty, is an incomplete endorsement - and 46.2-628 makes willfully failing to endorse fully and correctly a Class 3 misdemeanour.

#	WHO	BOX	WHAT GOES IN IT
9	YOU	The second owner's pair of lines	A second signature and printed name, for a certificate issued in two names. Watch out: Leave them alone if there is only one owner. Filling them in with the buyer's details - a genuinely common mistake, because they sit directly above the buyer's lines - crosses the two halves of the block.
10	BUYER	Section A - the buyer signs	The buyer signs on the Signature of Buyer(s) rule, under the sentence acknowledging the odometer certification the seller has just made. Watch out: They are signing your mileage figure, not their own. That is why the reading goes in before the pen reaches this line.
11	BUYER	Section A - the buyer prints	Printed name beside the buyer's signature, closing the block. Watch out: At this point the assignment is complete and the certificate belongs to the buyer. Everything else - tax relief, lien, registration, certification of buyer - happens on the reverse, in their hand.
12	BUYER	The second buyer's pair of lines	A second buyer signature and printed name, used only where the car is going into two names. Watch out: Below them the sheet ends in a detach-here rule and a strip for a dealer's number and licensing jurisdiction. That strip is not yours - a private seller who writes in it has claimed to be a licensed Virginia dealer on a document signed under penalty of perjury.

Six habits for the block on the front

- Read the mileage off the dashboard — DMV already holds the last figure and prints it on the face of the certificate. A reading below it puts the title on hold and can brand it NOT ACTUAL.
- Nothing may be altered or erased — The sentence is printed across the head of the certificate. A crossed-out digit is a replacement title, not a correction.
- Every owner on the face signs — One signature on a two-name certificate is not an assignment, however clearly the other owner agrees.
- Write the price, even to a friend — The figure you enter is treated as the bill of sale. Leave it out and the buyer is sent to a price certification or a valuation guide.
- Take the plates before they drive away — They belong to you and Virginia wants them back immediately if they are not going onto another car of yours.
- Tell DMV afterwards — No penalty attaches, no deadline is set, and it is still the only thing that gets the vehicle off your record.

Every rule here is transcribed from Virginia DMV, Buying/Selling a Vehicle and the Virginia Department of Motor Vehicles's own pages. Plain-language help with a form, not legal advice — where our wording and the agency's differ, theirs governs.
